The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 9TH, 1907.

We see in correspondence with the local Chamber of Commerce, which we hope to find space for later, that the Chamber addressed the Colonial Secretary on the subject of the Nanking Viceroy's projected opium monopoly. All shops will have to buy their raw opium from the Viceroy's nominee. If the scheme succeeds, and is as profitable as it promises, other Viceroy's will be sure to copy the example, and the Chamber lodges a protest against such interference with an established foreign trade. The Governor is asked to support the protest, on the ground that the project is illegal and contrary to treaty, Articles V and X of the British Treaty of Nanking, 1842 being quoted. The British Merchants in Shanghai combined and refused to supply the monopolist, who thereupon began to buy at Hongkong, where a boycott was less easy to arrange. The Chamber points out that while the new Bureau poses as an anti-opium movement it is really a monopoly with revenue as its sole object. The Hongkong merchants interested had written not only to the Chamber of Commerce, pointing these things out, but also to the British Consul at Shanghai, and to the Chairman of the China Association at Shanghai. The Chamber of Commerce telegraphed to the British Minister at Peking adding their protest to those already forwarded. The Hongkong Branch of the China Association also agreed to co-operate in the protection of the interests concerned. The protest was forwarded by the Governor to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, but at the same time His Excellency pointed out, to the Hongkong Chamber, that the persons "directly affected," and upon whom should devolve the task of representing to His Britannic Majesty's Minister at Peking the alleged breach of treaty, are the merchants of Nanking. His Excellency also suggested that the merchants of Hongkong should endeavour, in order to protect their own interests, to take at a similar to those taken by the merchants of Shanghai—to combine and refuse to sell to the monopolist. The British Minister at Peking called upon the Waiwupu, pending a diplomatic settlement, to stop the provincial authorities from taking upon themselves to devise such measures as must restrict a legal trade guaranteed by treaty. The Waiwupu sent telegrams to suspend the monopoly, and issued a proclamation.

Local Chinese papers publish an unconfirmed story that a local bank has been robbed of a lot of dollars by a shroff.

The weather seems very promising for the Al Fresco fest announced to be held to-morrow night in the compound of the Roman Catholic Cathedral. A pleasant evening will be enjoyed by those who visit the Bazaar in aid of the poor under the care of the well known Society of St. Vincent de Paul and the band of B.M.S. "Bedford" will, no doubt, be an additional attraction. The members of the Society are working hard at the pavilions and stalls, where the conveniences and other attractions are exhibited, and improved arrangements are being made for the exchange of tickets in order to avoid confusion and make matters easier than in previous years.

In view of the wild fluttering of lawn sleeves in prelatial circles over the Deceased Wife's Sister Act, and the frenzied episcopal appeals to the more ignorant of the clergy as to the perfect divine inspiration and the eternal validity of Canon Law, Mr. Spencer Leigh Hughes has been wickered enough, in "London Opinion" and other papers, to instruct, in the most sinfully irrelevant tone, the public opinion of the United Kingdom as to what Canon Law really contains. And the contents are certainly a surprise to the Man in the Street. Amongst other things, it is gravely concerned with frivolities about clerical dress, tippets, night-caps, doublets, hose, and so on. And Mr. Hughes doesn't see why the clergy should insist on points of the Canon Law being observed, while the rest is ignored.

"The sexton of a quaint old church," said the traveller, "showed me through the cool, dim building one warm afternoon, and as we were departing, pointed to the Bible on the lectern and smiled. 'A strange thing happened last Sunday in connection with that Bible,' he said. 'We had a strange minister preaching here, and when he opened the Book he came upon a notice and read it out with all due solemnity. It was a request for the congregation's sympathy and prayers for John Q. Griggs, who had been deeply afflicted by the loss of his wife.' 'The sexton paused and chuckled softly. 'You see, sir, he said, 'our regular minister had been using that paper as a book marker more than a year, and John Q. Griggs, in a natty grey suit, sat in the front pew with the new wife he had taken just the week before.'"

By kind permission of Lieut.-Col. W. Scott Moncrieff and officer, the band of the Third Battalion "The Duke of Cambridge's Own" (Middlesex Regiment) will play the following programme of music during dinner, at the Hongkong Hotel, this (Saturday) evening:—

The H. K. V. C. is to parade at Headquarters at 8.30 this (Saturday) morning. Dress:—Khaki, Khaki Helmet with Badge, two 10-round pouches, waist belt, side arms, rifle with sling. Black boots and putties will be worn. Members in possession of medals, etc., will wear the same. The following letter has been received from His Excellency the Governor by the Commandant and is published for information:—"I shall be grateful if you will be so good as to express to the Officers and men under your command my keen appreciation of the general efficiency and smartness of the corps so far as I was able to judge of what I saw yesterday. The gun and maxim drill which I saw was excellent and characterized by great keenness, with a thorough knowledge of how to handle the guns and maxims in action. I was also greatly interested in the semaphore class of cadets. The camp was admirably laid out, and the messing and other arrangements appeared to leave nothing to be desired. The lighting of the camp was a very special feature and reflects great credit on the Engineer Company. I hope, when we next meet, that the strength of the corps will have further increased."

William Randolph Hearst announces that he will not be a candidate for the U.S. presidency. He declares that he is out of politics permanently.

A French critic writing of British officers in the "Revue Militaire" says: They are generally drawn from the upper classes, which are well educated. Although the pay of the officer in England is higher than in other countries, it is still inadequate to meet the expenses incurred by the surroundings in which he lives. The situation has attracted attention, since its consequence is to deprive poor men from the military career, and to fill the Army with young men who are, it is said, more concerned with their sports and pleasures than with military questions.

THE ORDER IN COUNCIL.

The Japanese Advertiser (American) says: The proceedings which have been instituted against Mr. Bethell of the Korea Daily News, in the British Consular Court at Seoul, by virtue of the new Order in Council, like its own. There is a hole and corner fear about the entire affair which creates something resembling nausea in the stomach of those who have been wont to associate the great principles of habeas corpus with the idea of Anglo-Saxon justice.

Nowadays, apparently, England is content to sit at the feet of Japan and imbibe more modern, more Oriental, and distinctly more resilient legal teachings both in theory and practice. As this Order in Council stands, it simply means that the Consul, in collusion with the Japanese authorities, may absolutely muzzle every English journalist in China or Korea who tries to tell the truth about the outrages which have been and are being perpetrated in the insular Kingdom. As the Order is worded, it is not even necessary that this "seditious matter" should be published in Korea. Article 5 merely says that "every person subject to the criminal jurisdiction of the Court who prints, publishes, or offers for sale any printed or written newspaper or other publication containing seditious matter" shall be liable to the payment of security or in default or on a second offence to deportation! Thus an English correspondent sending "seditious" telegrams or letters to his home paper may be throttled by the Japanese authorities in Korea or China, acting through some accommodating British Consul official. If this is one of the beneficial results of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, we can only commiserate our unfortunate British consuls.

The weird manner in which this prosecution, or whatever else one may term these hybrid proceedings, synchroizes with the amended Order assuredly warrants every impartial onlooker in associating therewith a Japanese inspiration. We have said before and we say again that the normal legal machinery should be quite as competent to deal with the case of a newspaper proprietor as with that of any other citizen or subject, and it is a sad confession for Great Britain to have tacitly made that she is nowadays content to sacrifice her glorious fundamental and traditional principles of equity and justice, and the rights and interests of her subjects in the Far East on the altar of highly problematical and nebulous political and diplomatic advantages. Let us hope that no other self-respecting Power will follow this wretched example.

RESCUED FROM A DERELICT.

DRAMATIC SEQUEL TO THE FIRE ON THE FORTUNATUS.

When the steamer Fortunatus was abandoned on fire in mid-ocean, one of the crew, a cooke, was missing, and it was surmised that he had either fallen overboard or had committed suicide. An interesting letter, which was received from Captain Felton, of the steamer Iona on October 2, by Mr. F. Longmore a chemist of Melbourne, says that he had the misfortune to fall in with the burning steamer. When we were alongside, the latter proceeded, we found one poor unfortunate cooke, who had been left behind when the ship left the ship in the boat. He can't talk English, but we saw as we can get to the history of the fire from him, it is that he was a fireman on board, and his name is Jock-oh, from Haboragang, India. He appears to be very confused, and tells us that the fire broke out at night six or seven days after leaving Colombo; that he was asleep at the time, and woke up about 5 a.m. to find the ship on fire and all the boats gone, and no one left on board, but since he and that he had been on the ship over since by himself for eight or ten days. What mystifies more than anything else is where he could have stowed himself in the burning ship, and what remained of the cargo was still burning. In fact, the ship was listed over to port about 30 degrees or 25 degrees, and the high side was still red-hot in places. A more melancholy sight you could hardly imagine.

CUSTOMS OF THE TRADE.

The term "trade customs" in some quarters appears to be the modern synonym for malpractices (says the Lancet). So many defendants shelter themselves, or attempt to shelter themselves, behind the plea of trade custom that it would be interesting to have a list published of "trade customs." The public have a right to know what trade customs are. We doubt very much if the public know quite so much about them as the trade.

Police court proceedings enlighten us considerably at times, but there are many "trade customs" that we need for a glossary of them. We fancy that we should be fairly safe in saying that such a compilation would open our eyes to a string of petty practices designed more or less to cheat the purchasing public: trade customs, in fact which though approved by the trade are, strictly speaking, illegal transactions.

We should like to see appointed a Royal Commission on "trade customs." The selection of the Commissioners, who, of course, would be authorities on the subject, would be interesting and the evidence of the witnesses would at least be amusing if not instructive. The final report would have the word "swindler" written in every one of its conclusions—that is to say, if the Commissioners honestly set about their business. These may be strong words, but day by day we read in police court proceedings how indictments for "trade customs" is met by the sickening excuse of "trade customs."

Brown paper is found in the soles of boots; it is a trade custom. Silk containing cotton is sold as pure silk; it is a common practice of the trade and therefore a justifiable one, because the trade recognizes it. It is a so at times the trade custom to call an article brandy which is not brandy, soda-water which is not soda-water, butter which is not butter, and so on ad infinitum. In fine, it will be found that "trade customs" as a rule do not call a spade a spade and things are not what they seem. The term "trade customs" is a cloak, is not in many instances honest, and in an equal number of instances exists to evade the law. The law should recognize no trade custom which is not straight dealing.

POLICE COURT.

Friday, November 8th.

BEFORE MR. F. A. HAZELAND (FIRST POLICE MAGISTRATE).

LARCENY.

A native who was caught in the act of stealing two tins of cigarettes from a tobacconist stall in Chiu Loong Street was sentenced to three weeks' imprisonment and six hours' stocks.

BUILT MEMBERS QUARREL.

Two members of the rattan splitters guild were arrested for fighting at Shektonai on Thursday night. They admitted the charges. His Worship, in warning the defendants, told them that some three years ago members of this guild were notorious for fighting and very frequently he had to order stocks. This stopped the trouble, and he warned them against reviving it. The defendants would be bound over in the sum of $100 to keep the peace for twelve months.

BEFORE MR. C. D. MCLIBOURNE (SECOND POLICE MAGISTRATE).

VAGRANCY.

A seaman giving the name of Frank Burns, who said he deserted from the sailing ship Eclipse at Canton some seven months ago, appeared before the Court charged with being a vagrant. The case was remanded to enable the police to call the captain of the sailor.

ALLEGED SNEZZLEMENT.

Man Chun, collector for the Hang Fung shop, appeared before the Court on a charge of embezzling $3,330. The case was remanded.

DEPRIVING THE MUTUAL STORES.

Lino Cardosa appeared before his Worship on a charge of obtaining from the Mutual Stores, with intent to defraud, goods to the value of $11.10 by virtue of a forged order purporting to be the order of one L. A. Leite, who is employed in the General Post Office. Mr. Leite denied giving the defendant any order on the firm mentioned, and his Worship asked accused what he had to say.

He stated that on the first occasion when he went to the Mutual Stores he got six bottles of Black and White Whisky and a round of cheese for Mr. Rosario. After this a Mr. Chavis told him to go and get two tins of biscuits and a bottle of Black and White Whisky. On that occasion the Mutual Stores refused to give him the articles.

His Worship sentenced the defendant to six weeks' imprisonment.

The forged order shown his Worship was written on Post Office paper, and the Postmaster-General is wondering how it got out of the Post Office.

CHINESE COMPANY PROMOTERS.

From information received at the Detective Office it appeared to the Chief Inspector that a firm of alleged swindlers were carrying on illegal business in a wholesale way. In consequence of this Detective-Sergeant Sullivan was despatched to the head office of this firm at 58, Hollywood Road, where he was surprised at the palatial surroundings. Costly Chinese scrolls adorned the walls, and handsome blackwood furniture and other ornaments were there in abundance. In fact, the surroundings were sufficient to give clients the idea that the firm was an affluent one, and this evidently was the object of the shareholders who, if the story to be told by witnesses is true, were dealing in thousands. The Sergeant's visit resulted in the arrest of Yang Fung-sun, a broker and Yung-tsun, Chan Kam-long, Hue Wan-shang and Woo Kow, all of whom are described as having no occupation. The defendants, who were all dressed in silken attire, appeared before his Worship on a charge of starting a Company similar to that of Messrs. Sincere and Co. with an alleged capital of $5,000 in 40,000 debenture shares, all of which were to be taken up by the third defendant, said to be sixteen years of age. This Company was to have premises in Queen's Road Central, and if they were unable to rent a shop they were to purchase one. The first man approached by one of the touts to become a shareholder in the new venture, it is stated, was the purchasing clerk employed by Messrs. Sincere and Co. He was told that his experience would be useful in making a success of the new venture and it would be worth his while to take a share in the company for $500. Borrowing this amount, he went to the office in Hollywood Road, where he was received by some of the defendants. They had a conversation, and then a gamble was suggested, drinks coming on in the meantime. The purchasing clerk stated that after being there a time he got a little stupid, and someone got him to sign a promissory note, but he could not say for what amount. On leaving the shop his suspicions were aroused, and he told the story to the managing partner of Messrs. Sincere and Co. It appears that in the meantime the first defendant went to the latter firm and purchased cloth to the value of $123 odd. When the manager of Sincere and Co. heard his clerk's story he decided to go to the shop in Hollywood Road and recovered the cloth sold to the first defendant. On arriving there with the purchasing clerk he was told that two men could not be admitted into the office at one time, so he left and reported the case at the Central Police Station. The first defendant said he had been in the Colony only one month, prior to which time he was in Shanghai. It appears, however, that other people who were victimized called at the police station yesterday to see the defendants, and the first was identified by one of the callers as the keeper of a sly brothel in Wai Ying Lane four months ago. Later on the same evening another native, who said he had been defrauded out of $2,500 by the first and third defendants, appeared at the station and identified them. On that occasion the project of the defendants was to start a bank with a capital of $40,000. This man took a sum of $2,500 to the house to purchase a share in the proposed bank. He was informed that one of the shareholders of the Company was absent, and asked to await his return. As the absent member was rather long in putting in an appearance, a gamble was suggested, and according to the story of the man, the first thing he knew was that he was minus his $2,500 and that he had also signed a promissory note, he thought for $5,000.

The hearing of the case was adjourned until Friday. Mr. Otto Kong Sing appears for the prosecution, and Mr. Crowther Smith (of Messrs. Almada and Smith) for the first three defendants, whose bail was fixed at $5,000 each. The fourth and fifth defendants must find a bail of $1,000.

FIFTY YEARS AGO.

[Extracts from the "Hongkong Daily Press," of November 9th, 1857.]

We have been waiting in the quiet expectation of some steps being adopted by the holders of Marine lots, to resist the illegal demand that Sir John Bowring is bent upon exacting, by the imposition of a most exorbitant and unjust rental upon the ground reclaimed from the sea in front of such lots. We cannot for a moment suppose that the parties interested, mean to submit to an act of expropriation, little if anything short of actual spoliation, and which we feel sure that Sir John has no legal means of enforcing. Nevertheless we do not hear of any steps having been taken to resist the contemplated seizure.

It must be known to most of our readers, to many of them to their cost, that the holders of Marine lots have been served with notice, that from the 24th June last, they will be charged for all the ground they have reclaimed from the sea, at the uniform and arbitrary rate of £50 per annum of 10,890 feet of area. We propose to submit a few remarks on this subject, with the view of calling attention to the illegality and untenable nature of this impost, under the sure and certain conviction that, if a combined movement be made to resist, we may get rid of Sir John and his prays, squeeze and all.

Soon after Captain Elliot, the British Plenipotentiary, took possession of Hongkong and long before the British Government had either sanctioned the act, or determined upon retaining possession of it, he issued a Public Notice advertising a land sale, to take place on the 12th June, 1841. The following is an extract therefrom: "Notice is hereby given that a sale of the annual rate of quit rent of 100 lots of land having water frontage will take place on the 14th June, 1841. The sale took place on the 14th June, but only 34 lots sold, and even some of these were subsequently thrown up. Of course the lots which did sell, were the pick of the Central Marine lots. Yet the average of the sale of these lots, we understand, taken as the standard whereby to regulate this squeeze upon the ground reclaimed from the sea, 100 lots were offered, and if that sale is to be the guide for ascertaining the value of Marine lots, surely its product should be divided by 100 and not by 34. But will it be believed that the ground reclaimed from the sea, in front of some of the very lots that could find no purchaser at any price at the sale, above referred to, have the pick of the lots? Yet so we understand the matter stands.

Now touching this sale, no deposit was required, no security demanded, no immediate outlay insisted on,—the man of straw could and did bid against the man of bricks, and so prices were run up.

JOINT STOCK SHARES.

Messrs. Vernon & Smyth say in their weekly share report, dated Hongkong, 8th November, 1907.—There has been more activity in our market during the past week, and a variety of stocks have been dealt in almost wholly for investment purposes. Rates in some cases show a further improvement, and others steady with advancing tendency. Exchange on London closes at 2/0 1/2, and on Shanghai at 7 1/2. The Bank of England rate of discount has been raised to 7 per cent, and Bariliver is quoted in London at 27-9/16d. per ounce.

BANKS.—Hongkong and Shanghai (old) have been the medium of further business at $650 at which the market closes steady. The new issue is procurable at 655, offers of a lower rate however, meeting with no response from holders. London quotes 275 and 473 for the old and new issues respectively.

MARINE INSURANCES.—Unions continue steady at $750, and China Traders at $80, the latter with buyers. North China have improved to 74 with buyers after a sale at 73. Yangtze are weaker in the north with sellers at $165, which rate we follow in the absence of local business. Cautions are quiet at $270.

FIRE INSURANCES.—Hongkong have advanced to $310 at which sales have been effected, and there are further buyers. China have been booked at $27, and close in request.

SHIPPING.—Hongkong, Canton and Mesopotamia have been freely dealt in at $291, $291, $301, and $301, market closing with active sellers at the latter rate. Other stocks in this section have not attracted attention during the interval, and quotations are without change.

REFINERIES.—China Sugars are weak with sellers at $103. Lanzas are unchanged and without business.

Mining.—Rauha have been booked at $91, but close somewhat easier with reported sellers at $89. Charbonnages are still in request at $470.

DOCKS, WHARVES AND GODOWNS.—Hongkong and Wharves Docks, after sales at $103 and $103, have weakened and are procurable to some extent at $100. Hongkong and Kowloon Wharves are unchanged with probable sellers at $67, and New Amoy Docks at $11 with sellers. Shanghai Docks are firm at 74, and Shanghai and Hongkong Wharves at the improved rate of 70 1/2, the latter with buyers in the North.

LANDS, HOTELS & BUILDINGS.—Humphrey's Estates have been booked at $103, and more shares are procurable. Hongkong-Lands continue on offer at $90, and Kowloon Lands at $38. Hongkong Hotels are still in request at $100.

COTTON MILLS.—Quotations are unchanged, and there is no business to report in this section.

MISCELLANEOUS.—China Braces have improved to $101 with sales and buyers. China Provident have been booked at $101, closing with probable sellers at the rate. Green Island and Consols are steady at the closing rate of $11 1/2, after sales at that rate and $11 1/2. Union Water Boats are on offer at the reduced rate of $11. Watkins and Powells can be placed at quotations.

"THE HOME OF BOVRIL."

No fewer than 27,000 invitations were issued for the annual reception at the Bovril Esolory, Old Street, London E.C. which took place on the 25th and 26th September. The Chairman, The Earl of Bessborough, C.V.O., C.B., and the Directors of the Company were present and amongst other may be mentioned. Members of the County Council, various Members of the House of Commons, representatives of public institutions, and General Sir William Wilson, K.C.M.S. The visitors were conducted in parties up the marble stairs into the "home of Bovril" which is a veritable palace, and as regards cleanliness and brightness it is safe to say there is not another factory in London that can compare with it. The beautiful polished white tiles throughout the building and the clean concrete floors, together with the free circulation of air and the abundance of light went far to explain the healthy appearance of the busy factory hands, all of whom have to pass a medical examination. The raw materials were shown in exactly the same form they are received from the carefully supervised factories in our various Colonies and the River Plate, where the healthiest prairie-fed cattle are plentiful. Emphasis was laid upon the fact that Bovril is all beef. Then came the splendidly equipped laboratories where much interest was taken in the delicate instruments and medical appliances with which the research work is done. All the raw materials are subjected to repeated analyses; every batch is examined, and frequent analyses of the finished product are made before leaving the premises. The whole process of manufacture, not only of Bovril, but also of the Company's specialities such as "Vital" "Invalid Jelly," "Bovril Beef Jelly," "Meat Juice," "Kodol," Cocoa and Chocolate. The impression left upon all those who attended, was the care taken during the process of manufacture to ensure the absolute purity and standard good quality of Bovril. During the whole process of manufacture, Bovril is never once touched by hand, everything being done by specially prepared machinery.

AN ELOPEMENT.

Early last month, Mr. Martin Maloney, a millionaire shareholder in the Standard Oil Trust, was spending money freely in sending "wireless" messages of forgiveness to his daughter Helen, believed to have eloped with Mr. Samuel Clarkson, an Englishman.

A New York correspondent wrote:—"The couple are reported to be on their way to England, and Mr. Maloney is endeavoring to get in touch with the various liners which left New York last week."

Mr. Clarkson, who is described somewhat vaguely as "of London," met Miss Maloney while she was making the usual European tour with her parents this summer. He is said to be poor, but handsome, and Mr. and Mrs. Maloney were not anxious to secure him for a son-in-law. Nevertheless, Mr. Clarkson followed them to America, and met Miss Maloney frequently.

For the past month the Maloneys have been staying at their $20,000 summer home at Spring Lake, New Jersey. Mr. Maloney left there ten days ago, and joined President Roosevelt's political tour in the Mississippi Valley.

This journey was unpleasantly interrupted last Wednesday by a telegram from his wife stating that Helen had gone to New York the day before on a shopping tour, accompanied by her maid, and Mr. Clarkson, and had not returned.

Mr. Maloney hurried eastward as fast as a special train could carry him, but he could not find his daughter and she is believed to have sailed on the "Majestic" last Wednesday with Mr. Clarkson.

Mr. Maloney learned that his daughter had gone to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel for luncheon on Tuesday. Here she eluded her maid, and quietly drove away with Mr. Clarkson. Mrs. Carberry Ritchie, another daughter, had packed two trunks for her sister, and the latter's elopement had evidently been arranged with care.

Mr. Maloney, who is reported to have sent an agent to England on one of the liners sailing yesterday, with instructions to find his daughter at all costs, denies that he wishes to stop the marriage, and says he is merely anxious to "forgive" his daughter and welcome her home with her husband.

The original objection to the marriage is said to have been based on religion. The Maloneys are one of the most prominent Roman Catholic families in America, and Mr. Maloney was created a marquis by the Pope in recognition of his services to the Church in purchasing several convents in Paris and presenting them to the nuns at the time of the suppression of religious organizations by the Government.

Miss Maloney is twenty-one years of age, and her father gave her $10,000 as a birthday present a few weeks ago.

Lung Troubles.

"I am Rapidly Gaining Weight."

OF ALL CHEMISTS.

670 Dalmarock Road, Glasgow.

Dear Sirs,—Two months ago a Glasgow professor and two doctors informed me that my left lung was ulcerated, and this following on three months of asthma was more serious than they would tell me. I was down in weight from 9 st. 7 lb. to 7 st. 7 lb. and was advised to go abroad. My own doctor put me on Angier's Emulsion, and since taking it I am rapidly gaining weight, and expect soon to be back to my normal condition and be able to remain at home. I may tell you I have made emulsions and have tried many makes of same, but find Angier's more pleasant and palatable than any other.

(Signed) J. FOSTER.

THE MOST PALATABLE OF ALL EMULSIONS, AND A GREAT AID TO DIGESTION.

Angier's Emulsion not only soothes and heals the throat and lungs but it also promotes appetite, aids digestion and greatly improves the general health. It is particularly efficacious in cases where there is loss of weight and many of our testimonials refer especially to its weight-increasing powers. Angier's Emulsion is prescribed extensively by the medical profession and is used in the hospitals. It is the most palatable of all emulsions and agrees perfectly with delicate stomachs.

THE INDIAN COTTON INDUSTRY.

The extraordinary development of the Indian cotton industry in the last three years has tended to draw attention from the still more important cotton industry. The recent course of the industry has been somewhat erratic, in striking contrast to the experience of the Lancashire trade. Cotton holds a far more important position in Indian agriculture, in Indian manufactures, and in Indian imports and exports. Over 22 million acres are cultivated with the fibre, nearly a quarter of a million persons are employed in the mills, over 6,000,000 are supported by hand weaving and spinning, and while imports of cotton goods represent 35 per cent of all imports, exports of cotton yarn and piece-goods constitute 7 per cent of all India's exports. The portion of the country directly interested in cotton is limited, and the mills are mainly in Calcutta and its vicinity, but the cotton industry is everywhere, and though the Bombay Presidency and its capital city are in the forefront of the industry, there is an increasing number of mills up-country.

SUPPLY OF RAW MATERIAL.

Next to the United States India is the greatest producer of raw cotton, and great attention is being devoted to the improvement of the fibre as well as to the extension of the area under cultivation. An increase of no less than 1,272,000 acres took place last season, and the yield was 4,988,000 bales, about 17,528,500 lbs. Out of the total production the requirements of the domestic industry and of the mills have to be met, and a large surplus is always available for export, the chief foreign customers being Japan and Western European countries, such as Germany and Italy. The India mills consume a rather smaller quantity than is exported. Endeavours are being made to produce a longer staple cotton in India, suitable for spinning higher counts. Thus, experiments with Egyptian cotton have taken place on irrigated and in Sind and with American cotton elsewhere, while tree cottons are being cultivated in Bihar. Some success has been achieved with Egyptian cotton, but last year the plants suffered from boll-worm, and both quality and yield fell short of anticipations. Owing to the liability of exotic varieties to deterioration and to attacks from insect pests, some prefer to rely on the improvement of indigenous cottons by hybridisation and by careful selection of seed. Coarser Indian cottons can at present be spun only up to 20's and finer kinds up to 42's, but the cultivator is not easily persuaded to abandon these inferior descriptions, inasmuch as they provide a heavy and paying crop which is readily sold either in India or abroad. The Indian manufacturers at present require but little long-stapled cotton, though a small quantity is imported from America for special purposes. A great demand has sprung up in recent years for Indian cotton-wool, which is increasingly popular as a cattle food and as a substitute for linnseed. In the five years to 1899-1905 the exports of this seed averaged only 36,000 cwt. In 1906-7 the exports had risen to 4,391,000 cwt.

THE DOMESTIC INDUSTRY.

The exact out-turn of the hand-loom cannot be ascertained, but some authorities have estimated that it amounts to twice or thrice the output of the mills. The handlooms, however, are undoubtedly decaying, though very slowly. The efforts that are being exerted to extend the use of the fly-shuttle may, if successful, alleviate the difficulties that are liable to ensue from too rapid a decline in the production.

INDIAN MILLS.

The mill industry has made steady, but not remarkable, progress in the last 20 years, as the following figures show:—

No. of Mills.	Capital.	Spindles.	Looms.
1885-6 89	Rs. 8,15,48,750	2,198,545	16,548
1895-6 148	Rs. 12,41,40,210	3,892,611	37,278
1905-6 204	Rs. 15,69,66,701	5,233,834	52,281

The actual capital is really larger, the precise amount not being ascertainable. One noticeable fact is the large proportion of rupee capital invested, the bulk of the mills being in the hands of Bhatias, Parsis, and other natives of India. On March 31, 1907, the number of mills had risen to 210, of which 172 were joint-stock concerns. By that date there were 5,544,242 spindles and 39,467 looms in position. Nearly three-fourths of the spindles and four-fifths of the looms are in Bombay Presidency, where Bombay City and Ahmadabad are the chief centres of production. For ten years or more the Indian mills have been subject to great vicissitudes, owing to scarcity of raw material, and famine in India in the earlier years of that period, and owing to war, internal troubles, fluctuations of exchange, famines, and Japanese competition in the important China market.

INDIA AND LANCASHIRE MILLS.

The Indian mills have an advantage over those of Lancashire in that the raw material is produced at home, so that freights, commissions, and other charges are much diminished. But they have to pay more for machinery and stores, interest on capital is higher, fuel is dearer, and skilled labour is scarce. Moreover, the directors often lack technical and commercial experience, with the result that business is sometimes ill-organized. But, in spite of drawbacks such as these, the industry is progressing, and more attention is being given to weaving. Mills are largely equipped with new and up-to-date machinery and electric light installations have been put into many of them. Complaints are sometimes made of the excessive duty on cotton goods; but this duty yielded only £181,000 as compared with £286,000 produced from imported cotton goods in 1906-6, and the progress of the Indian weaving industry in spite of the duty shows that the burden is light.

COMPARATIVE EFFICIENCY OF LABOUR.

Some years ago the competition of "brown" labour was one of the big questions of trade unionism in this country, owing to the institution of crude comparisons between the wages payable and the hours worked in India and England respectively. An expert who has recently written on this subject demonstrates that five or six times as many hands are needed in Indian spinning mills, and three times as many in weaving mills, to produce the same result as in England. The following table, modified from a table in the recent report on factory labour in India, brings out very clearly and forcibly the relative productive capacity of English and Indian workers:—

English.	India.
----------	--------

Operatives per 1,000 spindles	42	25
Operatives per 100 looms	48	125
Annual output of yarn per operative	7,730 lb.	4,000 lb.
Weekly output of cloth per operative	767 yds.	240 yds.
Indian wages to English per hour	1	22
Average approximate counts	40s.	20s.
Working hours per week	55½	50
Working hours per year	2,775	4,120
Monthly wages per operative (spinning)	Rs. 70	Rs. 13
Monthly wages per operative (weaving)	Rs. 72	Rs. 15

Neither wages alone nor hours alone can form a basis for comparing British and Indian labour costs. Indian labour is lacking in continuous application, punctuality, energy, and regularity. Men have often to be employed in India for work that women will do in England. The Indian workers are not specialised to factory work, and often exchange it temporarily for agricultural pursuits. They have little skill or education, consequently they make much waste, and, through want of cleanliness and proper handling, they not infrequently damage the machinery. Their sense of discipline is imperfect; their attendance is irregular; and they take long intervals for rest, smoking, &c. The fact that the Indian does not care to improve in skill or to work up to his full capacity is an important yet incommensurable factor in production. Complaints were recently made with good reason of humanitarian grounds as to the excessive hours of labour in some Indian mills, though apparently they did not reach the inordinate length of time worked in some Japanese mills. The Factory Labour Committee recommended that the actual period of employment of male adults should not exceed twelve hours in any one day, and it is only fair to add that this course has been favoured by many millowners.

SPINNING MILLS.

Now, as in the past, spinning is the most important branch of the Indian cotton mill industry, and the output is partly sold for power and hand looms in India, where there is competition with hand spun yarn, and partly imported English yarn, partly exported to foreign countries, China being by far the largest customer. It is said that yarns of 10's count are most remunerative, and after these come 20's, which are chiefly spun for China consumption. In recent years there has been a tendency to produce higher counts, and Bombay mills, where such counts are chiefly spun, have practically ousted foreign yarns up to 24's. The following table shows the increase in the production of yarns of both lower and higher counts (in millions of lbs.):—

	No.	No.
--	-----	-----

	15 and above.	Total.
--	---------------	--------

Average 1896-7 to 1900-1	424.9	391.4
--------------------------	-------	-------

1901-2 to 1905-6	5,774	299,577
------------------	-------	---------

Year 1906-7	681.4	492,630

In addition, about 23 million lbs. were produced in Native States and foreign territory. In 1906-7 the imported foreign yarns of Nos. 1 to 25 amounted to only 2.5 million lbs. and those above 25's to 32.1 million lbs. In recent years, and especially in 1905-6, the business in imported yarn has somewhat increased, but there can be little doubt that India will soon be able to supply her own needs in yarns up to 40's.

THE CHINA MARKET.

The dependence of India on the China market as its chief outlet for yarn has been a source of much trouble and frequent loss, but also, at times, of large profits. At present considerably over 90 per cent of India's yarn exports are sent to China, where in addition to currency and other difficulties they have to face the competition of China's own yarns—so far, a matter of small moment—and the more serious competition of Japanese yarns, so that India has no longer a natural monopoly in this country. Although Japan is to obtain about one-third of her supplies of raw cotton from India, she is making great headway. Her imports of production are as yet not greatly developed—she has but 1,500,000 spindles as against India's 5,500,000—but her business men are active and enterprising, and the cotton trade receives support from the Government and the largest banks. The net imports of English, Indian, Japanese, and other cotton yarns into China in 1905 were as follows (in piculs of 134 lb.):—

	1905.	1906.
--	-------	-------

English	21,837	30,701
---------	--------	--------

Indian	1,848,846	1,840,235
--------	-----------	-----------

Japanese	681,442	1,537,171
----------	---------	-----------

Other	9,825	15,915
-------	-------	--------

It will be observed that the Indian business is nearly twice as large as the Japanese. The former is indeed so large that no serious competition is likely in the immediate future, and it has to be remembered that with the extension of railways a constantly wider demand for yarn is realized.

NEW MARKETS FOR YARN.

Apart from China there has been hitherto no large market abroad for Indian yarn, though Persia, Aden, and Arabia have absorbed fairly considerable quantities. But during the last year or so there has been a marked increase in shipments to the United Kingdom, Turkey in Asia, and Egypt. At one time English and French yarns were sold in India, but these purchases have dwindled; lately, however, owing to scarcity of yarn in Europe and the inconvenience and loss resulting therefrom, Indian spinners have been selling low counts of yarn to Lancashire at prices higher than they could realize in India or China. This development has relieved the critical situation in the Indian industry that had arisen from the disorganization and congestion of Far Eastern markets. A possibly the cheapness of yarns due to stagnation in these markets, has had something to do with the new demand from England. At the same time experts hold that coarse Indian yarns (Nos. 4 to 16) would have a large sale here if certain defects were remedied. In the Levant Indian yarns have entered into active competition with Italian and other European yarns, which are in demand by hand loom weavers and knitters. Indian high-grade yarns are now in great request for forward delivery throughout Turkey, particularly from Syria. In 1906-7 the exports to Turkey were 5,559,450 lbs., as against 3,267,280 lbs. in 1905-6, this year about 27,000 bales of Indian yarn have been shipped to the Levant, and Europe, while forward sales of 30,000 bales have been booked. The receipt of repeat orders proves that the yarn has been a success. It would achieve a still greater success if it were more even and regular and always up to the sample.

INDIAN WEAVING.

In addition to seeking new outlets abroad Indian millowners have come to see that a much more of the yarn they produced can be profitably woven into cloth for home or foreign consumption, and it is for this purpose chiefly that higher counts are being spun. At present the home market is dominated by Lancashire cotton goods, the Indian piece-goods being too coarse for the majority of purchasers. Consequently such goods find a market to a large extent in Arabia, Aden, East Africa, Ceylon, and other countries washed by the Indian Ocean. For a time it seemed that British cottons, especially grey goods, were losing ground in India, little progress being a unit for the 15 years ended 1903, but since that date grey, white, and coloured goods have all forged ahead and broken past records. Apart from the home market the mills suffer to a slight extent from the competition of European and American cottons of particular varieties, such as American drills and dyed goods from Italy, Switzerland, and Germany. Still more effective in remote up-country districts is the competition of hand-woven goods, the coarseness of which is atoned for by their superior durability. Although Indian mills cannot expect for a very long period to produce goods equal to those of Manchester, their looms are undoubtedly now producing cloth that could not have been woven five years ago, and the upward tendency is marked. Moreover, while spinning has been subject to great vicissitudes, weaving has been flourishing for the past ten years, and prices have left a good margin of profit. The immediate future is promising. Many mills have sold their output for several months forward, and there is ample room for the weaving sheds that are being steadily added to mills. There is practically no risk in extending the production of shirtings, dunties, tea-dies, domestic, and chawls. Grey goods, at present comprise about fifty of the output, but there has been progress recently in white, fancy, and coloured goods, which would be produced still more freely but for difficulties in dyeing and printing. The total production of the Indian weaving mills last year (1906-7) was 169 million pounds, or about 682 million yards, besides a small output in native States. This quantity however, is equivalent to only about 25 per cent of the imported cotton goods, and, as we have seen, a part of the production is exported. In Bombay there are four factories for hosiery, a branch of the trade that has fallen largely into the hands of Continental manufacturers.

THE OUTLOOK.

In 1905-6 there was booming prosperity in the Indian cotton industry, but in 1906-7 came a reaction, chiefly owing to the troubles in the China market. The situation was alleviated by the enhanced home demand for yarns and cloth, arising partly from the cheapness and improved quality of these goods, partly from the success of the Swedish movement, which finds favour with large numbers who do not countenance political agitation or sedition. The policy pursued by the test mills in the profitable year 1905-6 of applying large sums to depreciation, of building up reserves, and of extending plant, and machinery proves that the financial side of the industry is not disregarded. With the home cultivation of better varieties of cotton, with the expansion of demand for yarns in China as railways are extended, with the exploitation of new markets for yarns and cloth, and with closer attention to the requirements of the Indian market, there is every probability of steady development in both the spinning and the weaving branches of India's greatest manufacturing industry. —Times.

HOW THE NAVAL OFFICER LIVES ON HIS PAY.

BY AN "N.O."

It has been pointed out that under the present regulations an Army officer has no more prospect of living on his pay than he had in the past, notwithstanding the notional and ordered status of his duties. It is satisfactory to turn to the naval service and find that, with reasonable economy and yet in decent comfort, man can live without drawing on his "people" and without running into debt.

As in the Army, so in the Navy the conditions of life have become more strenuous in the last decade. Of course, the "N.O."—to give him the title which he himself uses—is always on duty unless he has asked and obtained leave; he is in uniform, and the regulations still state that the wearing of plain clothes is a privilege extended to officers ashore for exercise and recreation.

Taking the Lieutenant as a representative rank, he works "in four watches" as a rule. This means that the twenty-four hours of day and night are shared between the four watch-keeping lieutenants, giving each of them six hours duty, during which he must wear his belt and carry his telescope, keeping his eyes skinned for the instant notice of any occurrence, be it so great as the shooting off of an admiral's barge flag, or so small as the surreptitious hanging up of his watch in an unauthorized place by the ship's cook.

At sea his place is on the bridge, in supreme command as the captain's representative, and responsible for the safety of the ship. And unless and until one has shared the middle watch—say, approaching the Channel in a November night with a fine West-country drizzle drifting up from windward and a long swell ahead, with a fishing fleet ahead spreading nets half a mile long, and a stumpy old sailing ship trying to cut across the bows—until then one does not realize that watch-keeping is no sinecure and no picnic.

Our lieutenant has kept his watch, let us say "the first," from 8 p.m. to midnight. His stomach breakfast by a quarter to nine. He will not get any, since at nine everything must be cleared up for divisions. When the barges are sound off "Divisions" our friend and his doggie, or attendant midshipman, master their special division of the ship's company on deck. The rule is called, and causes of absence are investigated on the spot. The ranks are opened out, and each man is inspected, lest perchance he be dirty or untidy or unkempt. The lieutenant is a capable head-earner.

Division over, the ship's company double aft to quarter-deck for prayers, which are conceivably short, practical, and intelligible. After prayers things begin to move. If you are in a smart ship of a smart fleet, you have to fight daily for your reputation, for every "evolution" is timed on board the flagship, and the order of merit is signalled to the fleet with appropriate and energetic comment by the "old man."

So, as the little bundles creep up to the flagstaff's yard-arm and are broken into orders, there is a tense silence preceding pandemonium. The bugles blare out "General quarters," or "Out now," or "Exercise action"; there is a wild stampede of all stampede to their stations, a stampede that hides a premeditated and ordered activity; and two minutes later there is silence again, denoting that every man is at his post.

Meantime our lieutenant has probably dived headlong into the fore barrette, where his twin 12-inch gun live. He has counted his gun's crew, found the second captain to be on the sick-list, and appointed a substitute. He and the engineer-lieutenant have tested valves and circuits and contacts, got the hydraulic pressure on, seen that the ammunition party are sending by in the magazine, and finally made the report: "Fore barrette all ready, sir."

Who comes? "Oh, we lost for it, you see. Then you two won't?" "No, we lost." And, lastly, in the Navy, mess bills are strictly controlled by a committee of three experienced officers. Accounts cannot be left unpaid. If necessary, the captain can order the paymaster to pay debts and debit the amount against an officer's pay. In fact, all gun-room accounts are paid through the office, and the midshipman receives only the balance as his pocket-money for the month. The youngsters are limited to 10s. a month wine-bill and 15s. a month extras over and above their messings, which is only 30s. a month. Three senior officers of the gun-room are by regulation responsible that the mess is conducted on a scale commensurate with the pay of the juniors, and the three auditing officers have to satisfy themselves that there are no internal debts, and that no officer has incurred any extravagant expenses, signing a formal declaration to this effect and handing it to the captain, who himself produces it to the admiral at inspection.

In the ward room mess the same routine is followed. The generous amount of 25s a month is fixed by custom as the limit of a wine-bill, and it is quite certain that even the plea of hospitality will not excuse an officer who exceeds it. But it is also as certain that anyone who attempts to "cock" within the limit will find himself subject to reprimand. An ordinary mess bill will run somewhat as follows, where a man neither stints himself nor indulges in any luxuries out of season.

Mess funds (band, library, furniture, games, etc.), 22s; messings, 23s; extras and wine and moderate entertaining 23s; servant and washing, 22s. The balance is 25s, which may be increased by whatever can be saved out of the 23 allowed for luxuries—in which category entertaining is placed. All ordinary mess entertainments are provided for by a special subscription included in mess funds.

The writer, being a poor man and "indifferent honest," was without any warlike economy to keep his extras, etc., down to 21s a month while serving in a smart battleship which played her proper part in the social life of Malta, and allotted 21s a month through the paymaster to his outfit. A 270 outfit's bill was thus cleared off in a three years' campaign without the loss being felt.

There may be two dozen men in the service whose private incomes exceed £1,000 a year, and out of a mess of twenty, perhaps two have an allowance of more than £100 from their people. But the great majority rub along with an occasional £10 note on birthdays or at Christmas.
